

Institute of Coding (IoC) Annual Conference, 10-13 March 2019 in Manchester

Dear Colleague,

I am delighted to invite you to join us for the first Institute of Coding (IoC) Annual Conference, sponsored by UKFast, 10-13 March 2019 in Manchester.

Spanning four days of activities, the conference will feature key sessions for learners, academics and industry, and the opportunity to contribute to the technical work of the IoC through workshops and discussion sessions. This conference will be useful for those looking to interact with universities, employers and outreach partners.

The main conference is on Tuesday 12th March and Wednesday 13th March, and includes a conference dinner, with guest speakers, on Tuesday evening at the Museum of Science and Industry (MOSI).

Sessions at the main conference include:

- Challenges & Disruption of 21st Century Digital Skills Training
- Degree Apprenticeships post 2020
- Addressing the gender imbalance in the digital and computing sector

The speaker line up is being confirmed and the programme will be updated as this happens. You can view the current line-up and the full programme here.

To book your place, please complete the registration form. Some sessions have a limited number of places, so during the registration process you will be asked to select the session(s) you would like to attend.

I, and my IoC colleagues, look forward to welcoming you to the first IoC Conference.

Kind regards

Rachid Hourizi
Director, Institute of Coding

Book your place, by completing the event registration form